Remembering Granville in the 1970's

More than 50 Granvilleans attended the Granville Historical Society's "Growing Up in Granville in the '70s" forum Feb. 23, most of them Granville High School graduates from 1970 through the early 1980s. Led by the panel of Richard "Toad" Gosnell ('74), Jodi Weaver Lavelly ('80), Darcy Durst Grossett ('76), Jennie Lipphardt Richards ('75), Tim Blackstone ('80) and Beth Rucker White ('83), topics discussed included the downtown setting, community characters, Spring Valley Pool, popular restaurants, music, and neighborhood sports venues. And all agreed with Darcy Grossett's summary: "It was a place where everybody cared about everybody when something happened. It was like a big family." A full story on the forum will appear in the spring edition of the Society's Historical Times.

Granville Garden Club Shares Their Story March 15th

Hear about the history of the Granville Garden Club in a program Wednesday, March 15, at 7 p.m. in the Robinson Research Center behind the Granville Historical Society Museum downtown. "The History of the Granville Garden Club" will be presented by a trio of longtime club members: Rose Wingert, Nancy Eucker, and Joyce Morris. The threesome has been researching old meeting minutes, booklets, scrapbooks and other sources of club information in the Granville Historical Society Archives in preparation for the Power-Point program that will include a number of photos through the years. They will start with the year the club organized, in 1931. The club is best known for its annual Granville Daffodil Show, held in April. To conclude the program, Joyce will conduct three brief demonstrations of differing types of floral arrangements. Admission to the program is free.

Programs: Getting Involved and Connected

The Granville Historical Society continues to grow in many exciting ways and at the moment we find ourselves looking for creative, enthusiastic, "ideas" people. If you are interested or know someone that enjoys planning events, being creative and organizing special programs, then we may be a perfect fit for each other.

Currently the Historical Society offers an event or program at least once a month for members, donors and the community. Our events are often free and cover a variety of topics.

If you have a couple extra hours a month and would like to help the Historical Society bring fun, stimulating and informative programs to life, then we urge you to get connected with us.

Please email us at granvillehistorical@gmail.com or stop in, Thursdays from 9:30 - 3:30, in the Robinson Research Center and ask for Jodi or Chuck.
